This volume includes 10 papers that were prepared as part of a joint research project on environmental policy carried out by the Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei (FEEM) and the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER). The papers were presented at a conference hosted by FEEM at their headquarters in Milan, Italy, on 11–12 June 1999. We are grateful to Martin Feldstein, president of the NBER, and James Poterba, program director for Public Economics at the NBER, for their constant support and advice over the course of this project. We also thank Domenico Siniscalco, director of the FEEM, for his support. Finally, we acknowledge financial support from the NBER, FEEM, and a grant by the National Science Foundation to the Yale/NBER Program in International Environmental Economics.

Organizing a transoceanic conference requires tremendous logistical support and we were well supported on both sides of the Atlantic. The staff of the NBER Conference Department provided outstanding support in preparing for the conference. Rob Shannon, Brett Maranjian, and Kirsten Foss Davis were always ready with a calm demeanor and ready answer for the most complex question or problem. In Milan, Rita Murelli made our stay very enjoyable and handled numerous logistical issues on short notice with great efficiency. The entire conference went off without a hitch in large part due to the expert assistance from these individuals at NBER and FEEM.

After the conference, Helena Fitz-Patrick of the NBER Publications Department provided consistent support to the authors and editors as we moved these papers and comments through the editorial process and into print.
