

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	i
Introduction	1
I A Very Short History of the Imagination	9
Introduction	9
Myth, Memory, and Emotion	10
Ancient and Medieval Imagination	12
Imagination in the Enlightenment	18
The Romantic Imagination	22
Imagination in the Modern Period:
Philosophical Work	26
Imagination in the Modern Period:
Psychological Work	33
Conclusion	36
II Why Is Imagination Important to Education?	45
Introduction	45
Imagination and Conventional Thinking	46
Imagination in Learning	49
Imagination and Memory	52
Social Virtues	54
Imagination and Freedom	57
Imagination and Objective Knowledge	59
Vizualization, Originality, and Creativity	61
The Narrative Mind	62
Conclusion	65
III Characteristics of Students' Imaginative Lives,
Ages 8-15	67
Introduction	67
The Affective Connection	69
Extremes and Limits	72
Romance, Wonder, and Awe	75
Associating With the Heroic	80

Revolt and Idealism	82
Matters of Detail	84
Humanizing Knowledge	86
Conclusion	88
IV Imagination and Teaching	91
Introduction	91
A Planning Framework For Imaginative Teaching and Learning	93
Exploration of the Framework by Means of an Example	93
Less Formal Implementations: Fragmenting the Framework	102
From Characteristics to Principles of Learning	107
Conclusion	112
V Image and Concept	115
VI Some Further Examples	119
Introduction	119
Mathematics	120
Science	125
Social Studies	133
Language Arts	144
Conclusion	151
Conclusion	153
The Role of the Teacher	154
The Imaginative Curriculum	156
Eliminating Social Studies and Humanities	159
Imagination and Entertainment	162
Interests and Abilities: Educational Clichés	163
The Moral Dimension	165
The Logic of the Heart	166
References	169
Index	175