Laura Cereta, born in Brescia in 1469, was educated by nuns at a local convent. She was married at the age of fifteen and widowed at sixteen. Her first book—a collection of autobiographical Latin letters—appeared three years after her husband's death.

Diana Robin is professor of classics and director of comparative literature and cultural studies at the University of New Mexico. She is the author of Filelfo in Milan: Writings 1451–1477 (Princeton).
