

CONTENTS

PREFACE	PAGE 7
-------------------	-----------

PART I

BEGINNINGS

CHAPTER I

FORERUNNERS OF THE "WOBBLIES"

Early revolutionary bodies	27
English prototypes	29
Early radical unions in the United States	29
The National Labor Union	30
The Knights of Labor	30
The Internationals	35
The Sovereigns of Industry	37
The United Brewery Workmen	38
The United Mine Workers of America	38
Haymarket	39
The American Railway Union	40
The Western Federation of Miners	40
W. F. M. strikes	40
The Western Labor Union	43
The American Labor Union	44
The Socialist Labor Party and the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance	46
The French Confédération Général du Travail	53

CHAPTER II

THE BIRTH OF THE I. W. W.

Pre-convention conferences	57
The rôle of the Western Federation of Miners	60
The January Conference	61
The Industrialist Manifesto	62
Attitude of the A. F. of L.	65
The Industrial Union Convention and the launching of the I. W. W.	67

	PAGE
Character of industries and unions represented	68
Numerical predominance of the Western Federation and the American Labor Union	71
Daniel DeLeon and the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance.	75
Doctrinal elements represented in the convention: reformist, direct- actionist and doctrinaire	76
The dominant personalities	79

CHAPTER III

THE I. W. W. versus THE A. F. OF L.

Attitude of the revolutionary industrialists toward the Federation.	83
Critique of craft unionism	84
"Union scabbery" and the aristocracy of labor	85
Emphasis on the unskilled and unorganized	87
The "pure and simple" union and the "labor lieutenant"	88
Repudiation of the policy of "boring from within"	89
Convention resolutions	91
The preamble and the clause on political action	92
The attitude of DeLeon and the S. L. P.	93
The I. W. W. Constitution	96
Classification of industries	96
The structure of the organization	98
The local unions and other subordinate bodies	98
The General Executive Board and its powers	100
Other provisions	101
Influence of "DeLeonism" in the convention	103
The primary importance of the Western Federation of Miners	104
Samuel Gompers on the convention	106
Other comments	107
What the constitutional convention accomplished	108

PART II

THE FIRST PHASE

[The "original" I. W. W.]

CHAPTER IV

MAIDEN EFFORTS ON THE ECONOMIC FIELD

The situation at the close of the first convention	113
Progress during the first year	114
Activities among A. F. of L. locals	115

CONTENTS

19

	PAGE
Friction with Federation unions	116
Practical compromises with the craft-union idea	118
Internal dissension	120
Breakdown of the Metals and Machinery Department	122
Defection of the Western Federation of Miners	122
Early strikes and strike activities	123
Strike policies	124
The New Jersey Socialist Unity Conference	125
The discussion on socialism and the trade unions	127
The Unity Conference resolutions	128
The second I. W. W. convention	129
Growth in membership	130
The Industrial Departments	131

CHAPTER V

THE coup OF THE "PROLETARIAN RABBLE"

The "reactionaries" vs. the "wage slave delegates" at the second convention	136
The DeLeon-St. John attack on President Sherman	137
Pre-convention conference of the "DeLeonite rabble"	137
The indictment of Sherman	139
Playing freeze-out with the "wage slave delegates"	142
The per diem resolution and the defeat of the Shermanites	143
Abolition of the office of General President	143
The findings of the Master in Chancery	145
Contemporary comment on the quarrel	147
DeLeonism and the Socialist Labor Party at the second convention	147
The Western Federation of Miners	149
I. W. W. finances	153

CHAPTER VI

THE STRUCTURE OF A MILITANT UNION

An organization for farm laborers and city proletarians	155
The I. W. W. and the lumber workers	156
Provision for foreigners	158
Foreign language branches	160
The local union	160
Relation of locals to the General Administration	161
Centralization	161
District Industrial Councils	163
Industrial Departments	164
Further discussion of political action	168

	PAGE
The Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone case	170
Defense activities of the I. W. W.	171
Proposal for a general strike.	174
Effect of the Moyer-Haywood case on the I. W. W.	175

CHAPTER VII

THE FIGHT FOR EXISTENCE

The third convention	178
The condition of the organization	181
Membership strength	182
The I. W. W. at the Stuttgart Congress.	183
Political parties and the trade unions	185
The political clause of the Preamble again under discussion	188

CHAPTER VIII

"JOB CONTROL" AT GOLDFIELD

The A. F. of L. and the I. W. W. in Goldfield, Nevada	191
Character of the Goldfield local of the I. W. W.	192
The town unionists and the mine unionists.	192
Proposed consolidation of the two groups	193
Attitude of the Mine Owners' Association	193
Federal military intervention and investigation.	195
Report of the Commission.	196
What the I. W. W. accomplished at Goldfield	200
The I. W. W. and the Western Federation in Nevada politics	201
I. W. W. strike activities in other parts of the country.	203
General organizing activities	207

CHAPTER IX

DOCTRINAIRE versus DIRECT-ACTIONIST

Condition of the organization on the eve of the schism of 1908	213
Effect of the financial panic of 1907	214
The widening breach between the I. W. W. and the Western Federation of Miners	216
The line-up in the I. W. W. on political action	218
The personnel of the convention.	220
Walsh's "Overalls Brigade"	221
The Socialist Labor Party Delegation and the unseating of Daniel DeLeon	222
The issue between the DeLeonites and the Direct-actionists	223
"Straight industrialism" versus parliamentarianism	225

CONTENTS

21

	PAGE
The preamble purged of politics	226
Rump convention of the DeLeonites at Paterson, New Jersey . .	228
A bifurcated I. W. W.	229
The issue between the Detroit I. W. W. and the Chicago I. W. W.	231
The Wobblies' criticism of parliamentary government	232
The doctrinaire state socialism of the Detroiters	234
The issue illustrated in the contrast between Daniel DeLeon and Vincent St. John	235
I. W. W. constitution non-political rather than anti-political . . .	236
Influence of DeLeon on the I. W. W.	238

CHAPTER X

THE I. W. W. ON THE "CIVILIZED PLANE"

The development of the Detroit I. W. W.	242
Strike activities and friction with the "Bummery" or Direct- actionist faction.	245
The Anarcho-syndicalists versus the parliamentarians	251
The Detroit I. W. W. on sabotage	252
Eugene Debs' plea for a union of the two I. W. W.s.	252
The Detroit I. W. W. becomes The Workers International In- dustrial Union	254

PART III

THE ANARCHO-SYNDICALISTS

[The Direct Actionists]

CHAPTER XI

FREE SPEECH AND Sabotage

Condition of the Direct-actionist faction after the split with the Doctrinaires	258
The Wobblies establish the "free-speech fight" as an institution.	260
The procedure in free-speech fights	260
I. W. W. tactics	261
Community reactions	264
The conventions of 1910 and 1911	265
Growth in membership	266
The I. W. W. press	269
Local unions organized and disbanded	270
The I. W. W. and the French syndicalists.	271
International labor politics	273

	PAGE
The Syndicalist League of North America	274
The I. W. W. and the MacNamara case.	275
Franco-American sabotage	276
Demonstration against sabotage at the 1912 convention of the Socialist party	278
Article II., section 6	278

CHAPTER XII

LAWRENCE AND THE CREST OF POWER

Strike activities in 1912	281
The Lawrence strike	282
The use of violence at Lawrence and the responsibility for it	284
Dynamite planting	286
The I. W. W. and the A. F. of L. at Lawrence	287
Results of the strike	288
I. W. W. patriotism and I. W. W. morals	291
The 1912 convention	293
The beginning of the conflict over decentralization.	295

CHAPTER XIII

DUAL UNIONISM AND DECENTRALIZATION

The policy of "boring from within"	297
Dual unionism	297
An I. W. W. defense of "boring from within"	298
Tom Mann joins in the attack on dual unionism	301
Rejoinders from Ettor and Haywood	301
The 1913 convention	303
Centralization versus decentralization	303
The proposals of the "decentralizers"	304
The relation of the locals to the general organization	305
The Pacific Coast District Organization	309
The East against the West in the decentralization debate	311
The western Wobbly and the eastern	312
Geographical differences in I. W. W. local unions	313
An anarchist's impressions of the 1913 convention	316

CHAPTER XIV

RECENT TENDENCIES

Continued hostility between the I. W. W. and the Western Fed- eration of Miners	318
The labor war in Butte, Montana	319

CONTENTS

23

	PAGE
The United Mine Workers and the I. W. W.	323
The 1914 convention	325
The I. W. W. and the unemployed	327
The resolution against war	329
Constitutional changes	329
Time agreements	330
Growth in membership	331
The slump in 1914-1915	333
Revival of activity	335
The Agricultural Workers Organization	335
The Everett free speech fight	337
The 1916 (tenth) convention	338
Present strength of the I. W. W.	339
Character of the membership	339
The I. W. W. abroad.	340
Anti-militarist campaign of the I. W. W. in Australasia	340
Australian "Unlawful Associations" Act	341
The Workers' Industrial Union of Australia.	343
"Criminal Syndicalism" laws in the United States.	344
The turnover of I. W. W. members and locals	347
Conclusion	348

APPENDICES

I. Chart of early radical labor organizations	349
II. The I. W. W. Preamble: Chicago and Detroit versions	349
III. The structure of the organization in 1917. (Chart)	351
IV. Membership statistics:
Table A. Membership of Chicago and Detroit branches. (1905-1916).	352
Table B. Membership of the I. W. W. compared with the aggregate number of organized workers in the U. S., by industries.	354
Table C. Membership of the I. W. W. and of certain other selected organizations and industrial groups. (1897-1914)	356
Table D. Membership of (1) the I. W. W. and (2) all American trade unions	357
V. Geographical distribution of I. W. W. locals in 1914. (Chi- cago and Detroit).	358
VI. Reasons assigned for locals disbanding. (1910-1911)	364
VII. Free-speech fights of the I. W. W. (1906-1916)	365
VIII. I. W. W. strikes. (1906-1917)	366
IX. Selections from the I. W. W. Song Book.	378
X. Copies of State "Criminal Syndicalism" statutes.
BIBLIOGRAPHY	385
INDEX	423

