

Illustrations

ILLUSTRATIONS were an integral part of the American Guide Series. Many of the state and city Guides contained reproductions of black and white drawings, photographs, etchings, woodcuts, and other kinds of graphics—done in the 1930s by members of the WPA's Art Project and representing a wide variety of styles and approaches. Assembled here is a selection of these original illustrations. Like much of the text of the book, they offer unique glimpses of America's folk culture.

The sources of the illustrations are listed below by chapter. The number in parentheses following the state or city name is the page in the original Guide from which the illustration came. A list of the original Guides can be found on page 381.
