

Acknowledgments

I WISH to thank Beibei Sun for helping me connect with Chinese fintech firms. Beibei has been a constant source of support for this project and source of insight as an experienced PR executive who knows the ins and outs of the Chinese fintech industry. Thanks to others at Lendit, including Shawn Yu and Bo Brustkern.

Thanks so much to Jiaqian Liu for her tremendous assistance in supplying data. Without her help, we would not have some of the wonderful tables and figures that are included in this book. We are also grateful to Shuyuan Zhou for her assistance in helping conduct Chinese language research. Thanks to Shan He and Xun Han.

Myles Thompson and Brian Smith at Columbia University Press have been encouraging supporters of this book. We appreciate their efforts in making the publishing process easy and fun.

I want to acknowledge my coworkers at Speedpay, a U.S.-based payments firm, where I worked in the late 1990s, for helping me to understand the ins and outs and appreciate the importance of fintech. They are Darren Manelski, Marc Mehl, Albert Lingelbach, Gabriel Nichols, Alexis Blackstead, Sruli Shaffren, and Chaim Drellich. We knew the hardship of working ‘996’ first during the dot.com boom in New York City.

Thanks also to my professors for shaping my thinking and encouraging me: Stephen Reynolds, David Kiefer, E. K. Hunt, Gabriel Lozada, Karl Case, and James Galbraith. And thanks to my colleagues at SUNY New Paltz for their support: Edith Kuiper, Mona Ali, Hamid Azari, Simin Mozayeni, Laura Ebert, Jonathan Schwartz, Kristine Harris, Akira Shimada, Lauren Meeker, Nathen Clerici, Elizabeth Brotherton, Sunita Bose, David Elstein, Melissa Rock, and Sun Hee Kil. Let us raise a glass to free and open thought, and to exploratory research.

Last but not least, many thanks to my loving family—Joyce Keller, John Hsu, and Asya Hsu—for keeping me sane during the writing of this book.

—Sara Hsu

I want to thank Sicong Wang, the former CEO of Yilong Dai, and Qian Wang, the vice general manager of Yilong Dai, who helped us visit Yilong Dai and revise the case study.

Dean Zhenhua Li of Ant Financial Institute and the fellows Yanyan and Chengcheng Feng at Ant Financial Institute gave us assistance in investigating the Ant Financial operations and helped us perfect the Ant Financial case study.

—Jianjun Li

China's Fintech Explosion

