

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is the culmination of a project that started with some conference presentations about ten years ago, and I am deeply indebted to many scholars who have provided constructive feedback over the past decade on some of the ideas developed here, including Nien-chung Chang-Liao, Ping-Kuei Chen, Monique Chu, John Ciorciari, Michael Glosny, Avery Goldstein, Todd Hall, Andy Kennedy, Chun-yi Lee, Tse-kang Leng, Darren Lim, Shirley Lin, Yeh-Chung Lu, Barry Naughton, Hsin-Hsin Pan, Margaret Pearson, Chad Rector, Will Reed, Phil Roeder, Weiyi Shi, Susan Shirk, Stein Tonneson, Steve Tsang, Yuan-Kang Wang, Chi-hung Wei, Wen-chin Wu, Yu-Shan Wu, and participants in workshops and talks at Stanford University; the University of Michigan; the University of California, San Diego; the University of Nottingham; Western Michigan University; the University of Oxford; the University of Tokyo; Columbia University; Australian National University; Academia Sinica; National Cheng-chi University; and the Fourth Annual East Asian Peace Conference. At Columbia, I thank David Kang and Victor Cha for their interest in this project, Caelyn Cobb and Monique Briones for their guidance, and the anonymous reviewers for their helpful comments. I am also indebted to Anita O'Brien for her copyediting work, which made this a stronger manuscript. For research assistance, I thank Christine Liu, Guan Wang, Joseph Yinusa, and Yue Zhang. Parts of this manuscript draw on ideas originally published in an article in the journal International Security. Finally, the bulk of this manuscript was completed while I was holed up at home during the pandemic, working at the dining room table. I thank my wife Dina for putting up with me during this time; it is to her that this book is dedicated.