

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

THIS STUDY grew out of a survey of the problems of juvenile delinquency conducted by the Maryland State Commission on Juvenile Delinquency. James P. Hepbron, Director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, was the chairman of the state commission.

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the many individuals whose assistance and advice I have received in carrying out this study and in the preparation of this monograph.

I am especially indebted to Professors R. M. MacIver and William S. Robinson for their constant guidance, criticism, and encouragement throughout the planning, conduct, and writing of this study; to the late Dr. Thurber Fales of the Baltimore City Department of Vital Statistics for his invaluable assistance with regard to securing basic data concerning the ecology and demography of Baltimore and for providing essential maps; to James P. Hepbron, Director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, and to representatives of the Baltimore Juvenile Court for access to the juvenile delinquency records; to my brother Nathan Lander for his encouragement and help in the preparation of this study; to Ian C. Ross for assistance in setting up the data for IBM analyses; and to Professors Theodore Abel, Isidor Chein, Otto Klineberg, Paul Lazarsfeld, Jeremiah T. Shalloo, Rosalind Tough, and Helen Walker who read all or portions of the manuscript in its various stages and offered invaluable suggestions. To my wife, whose patience and encouragement made possible the completion of this study, I am deeply indebted.

B. L.

