BIBLIOGRAPHY, 217

YOU have seen many changes on Morningside in the course of your long association with Columbia. If they are good, it is in no small part because you have helped to make them so. With unfailing good humor, patience, and that quality of judgment of men and events that can only be summed up as wisdom, you have dealt most effectively with all the myriad problems that have crossed your desk. It is not as easy to be firm yet kindly, but you have shown us all that it can be done and we have profited from the example.
