

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I WANT to thank all those who have shared with me thoughts, fears, and doubts about politics and the political meaning of food. In particular, I am grateful to the organizers and the participants in the conferences “The Power of Taste” (Warsaw, Poland, October 2018), “L'alimentation comme patrimoine culturel” (Tours, France, November 2018), and “Cucina Politica” (Bologna, Italy, November 2019). The conversations that took place on those occasions have greatly influenced this book. My gratitude also goes to my students and colleagues at New York University and the other institutions where I have been invited to lecture or lead workshops, as well as to my coresearchers at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology of the Polish Academy of Science in Warsaw: research is never an individual endeavor.

Of course, this work would have not been possible without the support of my friends and families, both in Italy and the

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

U.S., despite the separations imposed by the pandemic. A special thank you goes to Doran Ricks, whose presence during the darkest moments of the lockdown kept me sane and grounded.

Thank you also to Esther Trakinski and Mateusz Halawa for their generosity in reading the first draft of the manuscript and providing precious feedback and to Maya Ruiz and Susan Pensak for editing my, at times, still wobbly English. I am grateful to Jennifer Crewe, Columbia University Press, and the anonymous peer reviewers for the opportunity to develop this project.

The research for this book has been partly made possible thanks to the startup fund provided to me by New York University, Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development and by grant DEC-2017/27/B/HS2/01338 provided by the National Science Centre, Poland.

Arguments that led to this book had been previously explored or partially published in my blog fabioaparasecoli.com; “Identity, Diversity, and Dialogue,” in Darra Goldstein and Kathrin Merkle, eds., Food: Identity and Diversity in Culinary Cultures of Europe (Strasbourg: Council of Europe, 2005), 11–37; “Savoring Semiotics: Food in Intercultural Communication,” in Social Semiotics 21, no. 5 (2011): 645–63; “Global Trade, Food Safety, and the Fear of Invisible Invaders,” in Social Research 84, no. 2 (2017): 183–202; “Geographical Indications, Intellectual Property and the Global Market,” in Sarah May, Katia Sidali, Achim Spiller, and Bernhard Tschofen, eds., Taste Power Tradition. Geographical Indications as Cultural Property (Göttingen: Universitätsverlag Göttingen, 2017), 13–24; “Eating Power: Food, Culture, and Politics,” in Tomas Marttila, ed., Discourse, Culture and Organization: Inquiries Into Relational Structures of

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Power (Cham, Switzerland: Palgrave Macmillan, 2018), 129–53; “Tradition, Heritage, and Intellectual Property in the Global Food Market,” in Ilaria Porciani, ed., Food Heritage and Nationalism in Europe (Abingdon: Routledge, 2019), 51–64; “The Invention of Authentic Italian Food: Narratives, Rhetoric, and Media,” in Roberta Sassatelli, ed., Italians and Food (Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan, 2019), 17–42; “The Power of Taste,” in Jarosław Dumanowski, Andrzej Kuropatnicki, and Fabio Parasecoli, eds., The Power of Taste: Europe at the Royal Table (Warsaw: Muzeum Pałacu Króla Jana III w Wilanowie, 2020), 171–90; “Nativismi e contagi,” in Massimo Montanari, ed., Cucina politica: Il linguaggio del cibo fra pratiche sociali e rappresentazioni ideologiche (Bari-Roma: Laterza, 2020), 175–89; “Super-market Forces,” MIT Technology Review, January 2021, pp. 10–12.

GASTRONATIVISM

