

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY

PAGE

- The industrial employment of women in England—The Gild System—The Domestic System—The Factory System—The early history of the industrial employment of women in the United States—The distribution by States of women employed in manufactures—The distribution of women by industries 11

CHAPTER II

THE CLOTHING TRADE

- The distribution of the manufacture of men's ready-made clothing in the United States—Early history of the clothing trade in New York City—The Transition Shops—The Task System—The Factory System—The manufacture of coats, pants, and vests—The use of power machines—The contractor 31

CHAPTER III

WOMEN IN THE CLOTHING INDUSTRY

- The participation of women and children in the ready-made clothing trade—Clothing shops and factories in New York City—The division of labor along sex lines, in work on coats, vests, and pants—Conclusions concerning the general employment of women in the ready-made clothing industry in New York City. 53

CHAPTER IV

WOMEN IN THE CLOTHING INDUSTRY (continued)

- Hours of work—Wages—Time required to learn the trade—Relative wages of men and women—The industrial position of the German women—The Jewish girls in the shops—The Italian working-girls 73

CHAPTER V

THE ITALIAN FINISHERS IN THEIR HOMES

PAGE

- The distribution by blocks of tenement-house work in the clothing trade in New York City—The nationality and education of the home finishers—Age, conjugal condition, number of children, and size of families—The character of the homes 94

CHAPTER VI

WORK, WAGES, AND EXPENSES OF THE HOME FINISHERS

- Method of obtaining work—Hours of work—Character of the work—Wages—Difficulty in obtaining wages due—The family income—The living expenses—The amount of charitable aid received—The Italian Mutual Benevolent Societies 106

CHAPTER VII

THE FACTORY SYSTEM IN THE OVERALLS TRADE

- The development of the factory system in the manufacture of overalls—The distribution of the industry in New York State—The division of labor between the sexes—Personal characteristics of the women employed—The factories—Hours of work and regularity of employment—Wages—Time required to learn the trade—Life of the women outside the factory—Relation between wages and living expenses 134

CHAPTER VIII

LABOR LEGISLATION IN NEW YORK STATE

- The classes of work-places regulated by law—Legal provisions concerning the employment of women and children in factories—Laws regulating tenement-house manufacture—The present administration of the "license" clauses—The results of this policy—The methods employed to enforce the law 149

CHAPTER IX

TRADE UNIONS

- Early organizations among the workers on men's ready-made clothing—Composition of the United Garment Workers of America—The participation of women in the affairs of the national body, and their relation to the general policy of the union—Their share in its financial burdens and benefits—The establishment of women's local unions—The general characteristics and history of the local unions—The conditions under which unions are most successfully maintained	165

---	-----

CHAPTER X

CONCLUSION

The possibility of improved conditions for women workers through a spontaneous increase in the size of shops or the number of factories, through a more rigid interpretation of the laws, and through trade unions	197
--	-----

ERRATUM.

On Map A, between pages 26 and 27, it is stated that the conditions there noted existed in 1890. This is an error; it should have read 1900. The error was discovered too late for correction elsewhere.

