

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

ONE Introduction 1

I. Sixteenth-Century Conquests (1521–1598) and Their Postcolonial Border Legacies

TWO The Invention of Borderlands Geography
*What Do Aztlán and Tenochtitlán Have to Do with Ciudad Juárez/
Paso del Norte?* 15

THREE The Problem of Color in Mexico and on the U.S.-Mexico Border
Precolonial, Colonial, and Postcolonial Subjectivities 47

II. Culture, Class, and Gender in Late-Twentieth-Century Ciudad Juárez

FOUR Maquiladoras, Gender, and Culture Change 69

FIVE The Political Economy of Tropes, Culture, and Masculinity
Inside an Electronics Factory 91

- SIX    Border Inspections
Inspecting the Working-Class Life of Maquiladora Workers on the U.S.-Mexico Border    115
- SEVEN    Culture, Class, and Union Politics
The Daily Struggle for Chairs inside a Sewing Factory in the Larger Context of the Working Day    151
- EIGHT    Women, Men, and “Gender” in Feminist Anthropology
Lessons from Northern Mexico’s Maquiladoras    185

III. Alternating Imaginings

- NINE    Reimagining Culture and Power against Late Industrial Capitalism and Other Forms of Conquest through Border Theory and Analysis    213
- Epilogue    233
- Notes    249
- Bibliography    277
- Permissions Credits    303
- Index    305