

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to thank Jo Ann Trial, who helped guide me through the ginger family and who furnished some of the slides used here. She also helped me with other slides and gave me a crash course in the Zingiberaceae, allowing me to do in a couple of years what would normally have taken much longer. I would also like to thank Larry DeMartino, who also helped me with the gingers at this critical time, and Wm. R. P. Welch for his excellent help with the tazetta narcissi.

I'd also like to thank John Fellers for the use of some of his slides.

Belated posthumous thanks are extended to the late Katherine Clint and her daughter, the late Marcia Clint Wilson, for the use of their slides. Their spirit lingers. The slides from their collections were priceless in helping to illustrate this book.

I'd like to thank former students Chris Abee, Jim Bauml, Charles Curtis, Wayne Curtis, Jeff Fields, Dylan Hannon, Reggie Jackson, and Steve Lowe for their help in collecting the bulbs of Mexico.

Thanks also to companions David Jordan, James Giridlian, Les Hannibal, Jane Kersey, Herb Kelly, Scott Ogden, and David Lehmler, who accompanied me on various trips and also assisted in collecting many of the bulbs mentioned here.

Thanks too, to the authors of other books on bulbs, for helping me keep in focus when I found myself foundering. At times we must lean on the experiences and observations of others if we are to go forward.

And finally I would like to thank Matt Cady and Orlando Renaud for their help with the computer. After several false starts in which I lost parts of my manuscript, they were able to find them again and get me back on the right track.
