

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Credit for making this meeting possible must go to numerous people, both in the Federal Republic of Germany and in the United States. Professors Peter Schöller, Roland Fuchs, and the editor were the initiators and prime movers for such a joint cooperative research effort. Dr. J. Warren Nystrom, then Executive Director of the Association of American Geographers, strongly backed this effort and received the wholehearted support of the Council of the AAG. Professor John Adams worked with the project director in the selection of the American participants; the Division of International Programs of the National Science Foundation, in their program of encouraging greater scientific cooperation between American and foreign scientists, was anxious for American geographers to establish a closer working relationship with their counterparts in the Federal Republic of Germany, and the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft's strong support in making this conference possible was much appreciated.

As far as this volume is concerned, the editor is indebted to numerous German and American participants for assistance beyond their contributions. Professor Klaus-Achim Boesler of the University of Bonn, a member of the Commission of the International Institute for Legal and Administrative Terminology, assisted in the selection of the basic expressions taken from the European Glossary of Legal and Administrative Terminology, volume 18 on Regional Policy (published by Langenscheidt KG in Berlin and Munich, 1973).

Professor W. Fricke wishes to acknowledge the assistance of Drs. Christa Mahn and Wolfgang Herden for the translation into English and many useful comments. Professor R. Doughty is grateful to the personnel of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and especially Mr. William Brownless for their helpful comments. Professor G. W. Hoffman wishes to acknowledge the valuable editorial assistance received from several of the participating authors from the United States. The extensive cooperation received from all authors in answering the editor's numerous queries is much appreciated. Ms. Karen Wickline was responsible for the drafting of several maps and Ms. Anita Porterfield did the final typing of the manuscript. The editor's wife, Viola Hoffman, spent untold hours in the detailed English editing of the various manuscripts, thus making a major contribution toward the final product. The whole-hearted assistance by the staff of the University of Texas Press, is gratefully acknowledged.
