

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: A Historical Ethnography of Class and State Formation	1
1. Counterinsurgency, Silences, Forgetting, 1946–69	27
Part I DEVELOPMENT (1969–85)
Preface: Colonial Residues and “Development”	51
2. “Boom Town in the Making,” 1978–80	57
3. “Getting By”: The Arts of Deception and the “Typical Chinese”	82
4. Banalities of the Urban: Hegemony or State Predation?	109
5. Class Dismissed!	125
6. Men in Motion: The Dialectics of “Disputatiousness” and “Rice-Eating Money”	165
7. Chinese Society as “A Sheet of Loose Sand”: Elite Arguments and Class Discipline in a Postcolonial Era	185
Part II GLOBALIZATION (1985–97)
Preface: Going Global	213
8. Subsumption and Encompassment: Class, State Formation, and the Production of Urban Space, 1980–97	221
9. Covert Global: Exit, Alternative Sovereignties, and Being Stuck	243
10. “Walking on Two Roads” and “Jumping Airplanes”	262
Epilogue: 1997–2007	286
Appendix: A Profile of Economic “Domination”?	303
Notes	309
References	323
Index	339

