

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
Section I. 1970s	21
Balancing Family and Career Demands with 20/20 Hindsight Aviva Brecher	25
Extreme Motherhood: You Can't Get There from Here Joan S. Baizer	31
Careers versus Child Care in Academia Deborah Ross	35
Identities: Looking Back over Forty Years as a Social Scientist, Woman, and Mother Marilyn Wilkey Merritt	41
Costs and Rewards of Success in Academia, or Bouncing into the Rubber Ceiling Marla S. McIntosh	51

One Set of Choices as a Mom and Scientist Suzanne Epstein	56
Section II. 1980s	61
Three Sides of the Balance Anne Douglass	63
The Accidental Astronomer Stefi Baum	67
At Home with Toxicology: A Career Evolves Emily Monosson	73
Geological Consulting and Kids: An Unpredictable Balancing Act? Debra Hanneman	79
Career Scientists and the Shared Academic Position Carol B. de Wet	83
Section III. 1990s	89
Less Pay, a Little Less Work Heidi Newberg	93
Reflections of a Female Scientist with Outside Interests Christine Seroogy	98
Part-Time at a National Laboratory: A Split Life Rebecca A. Efroymson	102
The Eternal Quest for Balance: A Career in Five Acts, No Intermission Theresa M. Wizemann	108
Reflections on Motherhood and Science Teresa Capone Cook	113
The Benefits of Four-Dumbbell Support Catherine O'Riordan	117
Extraordinary Commitments of Time and Energy Deborah Harris	121

Finding My Way Back to the Bench: An Unexpectedly Satisfying Destination
A. Pia Abola	125
Mothering Primates
Devin Reese	130
Finding the Right Balance, Personal and Professional, as a Mother in Science
Gayle Barbin Zydlewski	135
What? I Don't Need a PhD to Potty-Train My Children?
Nanette J. Pazdernik	140
Variety, Challenge, and Flexibility: The Benefits of Straying from the Narrow Path
Marguerite Toscano	145
The Balancing Act
Kim M. Fowler	148
Juggling through Life's Transitions
Cal Baier-Anderson	153
Having It All, Just Not All at the Same Time
Andrea L. Kalfoglou	156
Section IV. 2000s	163
Exploring Less-Traveled Paths
Deborah Duffy	167
Standing Up
Gina D. Wesley-Hunt	172
Because of Our Mom, a True Rocket Scientist
Elizabeth Douglass and Katherine Douglass	177
On Being What You Love
Rachel Obbard	183
Parsimony Is What We Are Taught, Not What We Live
Sofia Katerina Refetoff Zahed	187

Role Models: Out with the Old and In with the New
Marie Remiker	194
Pursuing Science and Motherhood
Kimberly D'Anna	199
Conclusion	203
Contributors	209