

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction	1
1. Emotional Diplomacy	13
What Is Emotional Diplomacy?	16
Emotional Diplomacy and the Emotions in International Relations	19
Official Emotion as Emotional Labor	21
Emotional Diplomacy as a Team Performance	23
The Consequences of Engaging in Emotional Diplomacy	26
Variation in Emotional Diplomacy	31
Empirical Investigations	33
2. The Diplomacy of Anger	39
Explaining the 1995–96 Taiwan Strait Crisis from the Traditional Perspective	41
The Diplomacy of Anger	46
Empirical Investigations	53
Looking at the Crisis as an Episode of Coercion vs. Official Anger	75
3. The Diplomacy of Sympathy	80
Explaining the RF and PRC Responses in Terms of Traditional Statecraft	83
The Diplomacy of Sympathy	89
Empirical Investigations	93
Looking at RF and PRC Responses as Official Sympathy	107
4. The Diplomacy of Guilt	110
Explaining FRG-Israeli Relations from the Traditional Perspective	112
The Diplomacy of Guilt	117
Empirical Investigations	121
The Luxembourg Agreement	123

Bullets Instead of Ambassadors: FRG Weapons for Israel	139
The Path to Normalization	150
Subsequent Years	158
5. Further Studies in Emotional Diplomacy	164
The Diplomacy of Anger	165
The Diplomacy of Sympathy	169
The Diplomacy of Guilt	176
Conclusion	187
Additional Strains	188
Quotidian and Signature Forms of Emotional Diplomacy	189
Official Emotion, Popular Emotion, and “Stickiness”	191
Notes	195
References	227
Index	243