

Acknowledgments

Over the years my research has been supported by numerous individuals. Many of them will have long since forgotten my queries and visits, but in ways likely unbeknownst to them, they have all helped to move me further along toward the completion of this book. I list them here in acknowledgment of their assistance and as an expression of my gratitude for their generosity: Rolf Baer, Susan Barnett, Axel Bauer, Cornelia Becker, Jost Benedum, Udo Benzenhöfer, German Berrios, Johanna Bleker, Wenche Blomberg, Marie-Luise Bott, Allan M. Brandt, Gerhard Buchkremer, Peter Burger, Wolfgang Burgmair, John Burnham, Craig Calhoun, Hildegard Christian, Thorsten Dette, Wolfgang Eckart, Gerhard Fichtner, Wolfgang Gerke, Christoph Gradmann, Luigi Grosso, Michael Hagner, Volker Hess, Paul Hoff, Axel Huentelmann, Konrad Jarausch, Teresa Jesionowski, Adelheid Kasbohm, Gundolf Keil, Cheryce Kramer, Lloyd Kramer, Gert-Eberhard Kühne, Mario Lanzcik, Martin Leonhardt, George Makari, Gregory Mann, Michael McVaugh, Christian Mundt, Melissa Oravec, Herman Rapaport, Donald Reid, Diane Richardson, Thomas S. and Linn M. Royster, Michael Schmidt-Degenhard, Catherine Rice, Volker Roelcke, Kai Sammet, Frank Sander, Wolfgang Schäffner, Gustav Schimelpennig, Heinz-Peter Schmiedebach, Annette Sundermann, Juan Tetzeli, Achim Thom, Nancy Tomes, Paul Unschuld, Rüdiger vom Bruch, Keith Wailoo, Matthias Weber, Rolf Winau, Susanne Zimmerman.

Several foundations and institutions have supported my research at various stages. I have been enormously fortunate to have been associated with each of them: the Fulbright-Hays Doctoral Dissertation Research Abroad Program, the Carolina Society of Fellows, the DeWitt Wallace Readers Digest Fund, the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft, the Stiftung der Deutschen Forschungsanstalt für Psychiatrie, the Max-Planck-Institut für Psychiatrie in Munich, the departments of history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and at the Humboldt University in Berlin, the Institute for the History of Medicine at the Free University in Berlin, the Department of Psychiatry of Weill Medical College of Cornell University in New York, and Cornell University Press.

The employees of numerous libraries and archives have helped me to locate references and collect materials. I have benefited from their professionalism in countless ways and owe a great debt of gratitude, especially for the librarians

x Acknowledgments

and archivists at the Zweigbibliothek für Wissenschaftsgeschichte of the Humboldt University, the Staatsbibliothek Preussischer Kulturbesitz (Haus 1), the Zentral Universitätsbibliothek der Humboldt Universität, the General Landesarchiv Karlsruhe, the Geheimes Staatsarchiv Preussischer Kulturbesitz, the Bayerische Staatsbibliothek, and the Bayerisches Hauptstaatsarchiv

I extend special thanks to the students of my seminars on Madness in Imperial Germany at the Humboldt University in Berlin and the participants of the Reading Seminar at the Institute for the History of Medicine at the Free University.

ERIC J. ENGSTROM

Berlin