

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Bibliographic Note xi

— Introduction 1

Part One: Scott and the Status of the Novel

1. Critical Tropes: The Republic of Letters,
Female Reading, and Feminine Writing 19

2. Utility, Gender, and the Canon: The
Example of Maria Edgeworth 60

~ 3. A Manly Intervention: Waverley, the Female
Field, and Male Romance 79

~ 4. From "National Tale" to "Historical Novel":
Edgeworth, Morgan, and Scott 105

— Part Two: Defining the Historical Novel

5. The Problem of Generic Propriety:
Contesting Scott's Historical Novel 137

— 6. Constructing the Past: Old Mortality and the Counterfictions of Galt and Hogg 161

7. "Authentic History" and the Project of the Historical Novel 195

8. Establishing the Author of Waverley: The Canonical Moment of Ivanhoe 237

Index 257

