

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
Preface	11
1. The Nuclear Revolution	19
Irrationality and International Politics	21
The Nature of the Nuclear Revolution	22
Lack of Proportion between Means and Ends	22
Mutual Kill and Mutual Vulnerability	26
Paucity of Evidence and the Enlarged Role of Beliefs	37
Factors Usually Seen as Crucial	41
2. Tensions and Attempted Escapes	47
The Built-in Tensions of the Nuclear Revolution	47
Inconsistencies of Viewpoint	52
A Spectrum of Escape Attempts	54
Conventionalization: Explaining Nuclear Politics with Prenuclear Concepts	56
3. The Countervailing Strategy and Its Areas of Incoherence	64
When Did the Countervailing Strategy Become U.S. Policy?	64
Substance of the Strategy	66
Incoherence of the Strategy	72
4. Issues and Contradictions in the Countervailing Strategy	86
Intermediate Nuclear Forces in Europe	86
Practicality of the Countervailing Strategy	96
Soviet Doctrine	103
Can Nuclear Wars Be Kept Limited?	109
Counterforce Parity and ICBM Vulnerability	111
Specific Contradictions in the Countervailing Strategy	118

Contents

5. Escalation Dominance and Competition in Risk-Taking	126
Is Deterrence without Defense Possible?	126
Escalation Dominance versus Competition in Risk-Taking	129
6. Conclusions	147
The Stability-Instability Paradox and Two Meanings of Threat	148
Objections and Rebuttals	157
Costs and Dangers of the Countervailing Strategy	162
Guidelines for Policy	167
Notes	171
Index	199