

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
PART I. PLANNING THEORY AND PUBLIC POLICY MAKING
1. The State of Urban Policy Planning	13
The Evolution of Planning Theory: Six Prescriptions in Search of a Problem	20
2. Planning, Policy Making, and the Political Process	45
The Inadequacy of Current Planning Theory	47
Planning Theory and Urban and Regional Development Policy	59
PART II. POLICY FORMULATION: THE EVOLUTION OF REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS
3. Emergence of a Policy: The Area Redevelopment Act	65
The Forces of Regional Development	66
“What Could Anybody Do for the Poor Devils?”	68
Pennsylvania’s Fight for Federal Assistance	71
Pressures for Policy Expansion	81
4. Political Strategy and Reformulation of Development Policy: OEO, ARDC, and EDA	89
Help for Those “Shortchanged Twice in a Single Lifetime”	90
“The Dole Is Dead”	94
The Public Works and Economic Development Act	100
PART III. POLICY ADMINISTRATION AND THE ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE OF URBAN REGIONS
5. The Politics of Economic Development in Northeastern Pennsylvania	115
The Changing Economic Environment	116
Limitations of “Going It Alone”	117

6 Contents

"Stirring up Provincial Antagonisms"	119
"Efforts Unknown or Dimly Perceived"	126
6. The Organizational Structure of Northeastern Pennsylvania	130
Pluralism, Decentralized Control, and the Openness of the Regional Structure	132
The Structure of Exogenous Influence	134
The Structure of Endogenous Decision Making	141
Shared Influence in Regional Policy Making	144
Shared Functions in Regional Development	145
PART IV. ORGANIZATIONAL INTERACTION AND PUBLIC POLICY MAKING
7. Organizational Complexity and the Ecology of Policy Making	149
The Distribution of Decision-making Activities	151
Group Interaction and Multinucleated Policy Making	159
Interdependence and Policy-making Structure	174
The Characteristics of Public Goods and Services	180
8. The Dynamics of Policy Making	186
Interaction Processes in Public Policy Making	188
The Constraints of Uncertainty	203
9. The Indeterminate Nature of Public Policy Making	212
PART V. PLANNING AND COMPLEX DECISION MAKING
10. Politics, Policy Analysis, and Development: The Future of Urban and Regional Planning	237
Planning, Policy Analysis, and the Management of Urban Change	240
Summary and Conclusions	264
Index	267