

Contents

---

Introduction	1
Theodor Dunkelgrün and Paweł Maciejko
Chapter 1. The Term Ger and the Concept of Conversion in the Hebrew Bible	26
Sara Japhet
Chapter 2. Ex-Jews and Early Christians: Conversion and the Allure of the Other	42
Andrew S. Jacobs
Chapter 3. Conversion to Judaism as Reflected in the Rabbinic Writings and Culture of Medieval Ashkenaz: Between Germany and Northern France	58
Ephraim Kanarfogel
Chapter 4. Of Purity, Piety, and Plunder: Jewish Apostates and Poverty in Medieval Europe	75
Paola Tartakoff
Chapter 5. “Cleanse Me from My Sin”: The Social and Cultural Vicissitudes of a Converso Family in Fifteenth-Century Castile	89
Javier Castaño
Chapter 6. Converso Paulinism and Residual Jewishness: Conversion from Judaism to Christianity as a Theologico-political Problem	112
Claude B. Stuczynski

Chapter 7. Return by Any Other Name: Religious Change Among Amsterdam's New Jews Anne Oravetz Albert	134
Chapter 8. The Persuasive Path: Giulio Morosini's Derekh Emunah as a Conversion Narrative Michela Andreatta	156
Chapter 9. "Precious Books": Conversion, Nationality, and the Novel, 1810–2010 Sarah Gracombe	182
Chapter 10. Between European Judaism and British Protestantism in the Early Nineteenth Century Elliott Horowitz	207
Chapter 11. When Life Imitates Art: Shtetl Sociability and Conversion in Imperial Russia Ellie Schainker	231
Chapter 12. Opposition, Integration, and Ambiguity: Toward a History of the Israeli Chief Rabbinate's Policies on Conversion to Judaism Netanel Fisher	250
Notes	273
Contributors	349
Index	353