Information Sources in Engineering

(Guides to Information Sources)
Edited by Roderick A. Macleod and Jim Corlett
4th edition 2005
Ca. 650 pages
Ca. 10 illustrations. Hardbound
Ca. € 148.00
ISBN 3-598-24442-8

The current, thoroughly revised and updated edition of this approved title, evaluates information sources in the field of technology. It provides the reader not only with information of primary and secondary sources, but also analyses the details of information from all the important technical fields, including environmental technology, biotechnology, aviation and defence, nanotechnology, industrial design, material science, security and health care in the workplace, as well as aspects of the fields of chemistry, electro technology and mechanical engineering.

The sources of information presented also contain publications available in printed and electronic form, such as books, journals, electronic magazines, technical reports, dissertations, scientific reports, articles from conferences, meetings and symposiums, patents and patent information, technical standards, products, electronic full text services, abstract and indexing services, bibliographies, reviews, internet sources, reference works and publications of professional associations.

Information Sources in Engineering is aimed at librarians and information scientists in technical fields as well as non-professional information specialists, who have to provide information about technical issues. Furthermore, this title is of great value to students and people with technical professions.

Digital Libraries

Principles and Practice in a Global Environment
2005. XX, 280 pages. 200 pages. Hardbound
€ 88.00
ISBN 3-598-11627-6

Digital Libraries introduces readers to the principles underlying digital libraries, and illustrates these principles by reference to a wide range of digital library practices throughout the world.

- Individual chapters deal with issues such as:
- Digital library users and the services that are offered to them
 - Information sources typically found in digital libraries
 - Standards and protocols with which digital libraries must operate in order to cooperate with other institutions
 - Software that can be used in the development of digital libraries
 - Interface design
 - Searching and browsing digital library collections
 - Administrating digital libraries, including discussion of intellectual property rights and preservation issues.

A final chapter comprises eight case studies drawn from Canada, England, India, Italy, Singapore, Sri Lanka, the US and Wales that are used to illustrate points made in earlier chapters. Throughout the book, the challenges of developing and implementing digital library systems in multilingual and multi-cultural environments are explored.

Valerii Leonov

Libraries in Russia

2004. Ca. 245 pages. Hardbound
Ca. € 50.00
ISBN 3-598-11593-8

In Libraries in Russia, the author, Valerii Leonov, pursues the history of the first national library of that country, the Library of the Russian Academy of Science (Bibliotheca Akademii Nauk, short: BAN), from the beginning of the 18th century to the present. The library was founded by Peter the Great in 1714 and served as a model for the foundation of further libraries during the 18th century.

This historical description is based on extensive historical and bibliographic material, including unique archive material, which is edited here for the first time. The title will be of interest to all in the humanities and everyone interested in Russian history and culture.
